

STARTS TODAY — Wakefield pitcher Dennis Hill takes a few warm-up tosses in preparation for today's home opener against St. Stephen's. In his first start Hill pitched a two-hitter against Richard Montgomery to aid the Warriors in gaining a 4-1 victory.

Schoolboys To Use Saturday To Relieve Crowded Schedule

Rain washed out the local high school sports program again yesterday and lingering thunderclouds threaten to crowd many events into a Saturday jam session or possibly put everything off until next week.

If the Wakefield and George Washington fields are not in playing condition by game-time this afternoon both the Washington-Lee and Wakefield teams will be forced to move back their scheduled baseball games still another day.

Washington-Lee is slated to invade league-leading George Washington this afternoon in Alexandria while Wakefield hopes to entertain St. Stephen's in the Warriors' home opener. Both of these games are to be rescheduled for tomorrow if the weather forces postponement.

It will be a busy Saturday in Arlington if today's events get knocked out by the weather, since the Washington-Lee crew is already scheduled to meet the National Champion George Washington in a regatta tomorrow, and Wakefield's rained-out track meet with St. Alban's is also taking place tomorrow.

Wakefield's home baseball contest with St. Stephen's, which will have many additional attractions to mark the first game played in the brand new park, is expected to be a close pitchers' duel between the Warriors' Dennis Hill, who held Richard Montgomery to two hits and one walk in the school's initial 4-1 conquest, and Eddie Westey of the Saints.

Coach Al Thompson of St. Stephen's has had an inactive squad since the team's last practice on Tuesday, and the Saints' boss believes the prospective postponement would hurt his lads' chances of spoiling the Warriors' home-town debut.

St. Stephen's had a schedule mix-up last week which prevented Al's boys from playing, while Wakefield tussled with George Mason as late as Wednesday.

Washington - Lee baseball boss Dick Morton has changed his selection of pitchers from Jim Simpson, originally due to hurl against Fairfax Wednesday, to Ed Johnson.

Wakefield's tennis match with Episcopal was postponed until May 5, and the track meet, originally slated to be a triangular affair including Friends, will become a duel contest involving only Wakefield and St. Alban's tomorrow morning at 10:30.

Wakefield baseball coach Mort Irwin is likely to be shifting his line-up for the St. Stephen's game, whenever it is played, despite the fact that there has been no announcement from the Southside regarding any changes.

In two games the Warriors have failed to hit satisfactorily and the last losing battle with George Mason saw many defensive blunders which were costly.
